"VIGILANCE" is referred to an editorial in yesterday's Sentinel entitled "Fighting the Rinks."

MR. MANNING is in his office by 9 o'clock in the morning. If he is a "boss" he is an Ir was reported yesterday in Washington that Dick Bright would be appointed Government Printer.

THE Republicans of the House refused eleven times to permit the Appropriation bill to be taken up.

MRS. CALDWELL, nearly 100 years old, the oldest person in Rush County, died yesterday. She was born September 9, 1785.

It is said that there are 51,179 Postmasters Who are "offensive partisans," "The fruits of the war" are not for them any longer.

To THE Republican Representatives: Sirs, which did you vote for-an extra session or to leave the charitable institutions of the State without appropriations for two years?

Our Washington correspondent telegraphs ns that Mr. Stockslager is being urged for Second Comptroller of the Treasury Department, and not First, as stated vesterday. He also says that young Will English is not an applicant for any position.

THE State Department at Washington says a correspondent, is the headquarters of a set of "denationalized snobs." He suggests that Mr. Bayard fill the department with Americans. A "denationalized snob" must be something of a dude.

WILL the organs tell why the House Rerublicans voted as a unit against taking up the Appropriation bills? If they wanted no extra session did they want work stepped on the much needed additional insane asylums? Did they want the insane, the blind and the deaf turned out of their asylums? Did they want the State aid universities closed? Did they want millions to accumulate in the State Treasury and idly lie there?

THE selection of Judge Cadwallader, one of the blue-bloods of Philadelphia, for First Assistant Secretary of State will rejoice the hearts of all good Democrats. It is almost as cheerful as the news of the selection of Endicott for the War De-partment.—Commercial Gazette.

Yes, you might have added that Cadwallader had a cousin in the Grant administration. When you get a vein of blue-blood from England plus a Republican administration you have reached the ultima thule of that sort of thing, and should be ready to anticipate the angel Gabriel at any time.

A WASHINGTON special to the Courier-Journal says that Senator Voorhees will recommend the following Indiana appointments: United States Marshal for Indiana, Mr. Edward Hawkins, of Laporte; District Attorney, Hon. John E. Lamb, of Terre Haute; Pension Agent, Colonel Charles Zollinger, of Fort Wayne; Collector of the Indianapolis District, Hon. Eb. Henderson; Collector of the Terre Haute District, Hon. O. P. Davis: Collector of the Kokomo District, Oscar Henderson. The same dispatch also states that the Commissioner of the Land Office will be given to an Indianian.

For eight years the claim has been defeated, but it slipped through this time tacked on to one expended. Many people who think the of the appropriation bills. Thus Mr. Hayes gets his money back, and the great fraud of ²76 flits momentarily through the gossip of the times once more. That $4,000 brought Mr. Hayes from his retreat.

An incident occurred Sunday night in Paris, at the Winter Circus, which was thought important enough to be wired by cable to the New York Herald, As Williams, the celebrated lion tamer, was putting eight lions through various leaping tricks in their cage, one of the lions, a large male, bounded on Williams from behind and seized him by the fleshy part of the back and by the thighs. A terrible struggle followed between man and beast. The spectators, shrieking with alarm, broke into the ring. Women and children fainted from tright. Suddenly the lion relaxed his hold of Williams and crouched to make a final spring at his victim's throat; but Williams, with extraordinary dexterity, managed to elude the attack of the infuriated beast and escaped | the Indianapolis press should use their colfrom the cage. Come to think of it, the House Republi cans may not have intended either to compel an extra session nor to defeat the appropristion bills. Who knows now-the innocents-but they may have thought the bill would hatch itself into a law if it were left to set? What a lot of old hens the House Republicans must be!

WELL DONE.

Now this looks bandsome. Our esteemed, charming and distinguished, but highly inflammatory contemporary, the Chicago Tribune, in a heading over its inauguration dispatches on Thursday morning the 5th, had the following:

THE FRIEND OF THE WIDOW AND THE FATHER. LESS INAUGURATED PRESIDENT.

An Eastern Republican paper promptly took the Tribune to task, commenting upon the head-lines as a gratnitous insult to the Chief Magistrate of the United States and also urged the Tribune management to prevent such exhibitions in the future.

The Tribune in answer rises promptly and handsomely to the requirements of the occasion in the following editorial com-

"It ought to be unnecessary to say that the head lines referred to were not authorized nor approved of by the editor-in-chief or the management of the Tribune, and would not have appeared in print but for the temporary absence of the latter from the city. Mr. Cleveland's private affairs during the late campaign are no longer proper subjects of public discussion: his indescretions were condoned by the vote that made him Presi-So far as Mr. Cieveland's past life is concerned, the Tribune has nothing more to say; we are chiefly interested in his conduct as Chief Magistrate of this nation. He is the President of all Republicans as well as of all Democrats, and, until he does something to forfeit it, he is entitled to the respect which belongs to his great office, if not himself.

THE BIG STEAL,

A discussions of the big land steal of the last Republican administration is gradually forcing its way into the newspapers. The New York Times gives Mr. Teller the following sprightly left-hander: "Senator Teller is quite right-the resolution of inquiry into the issue of patents confirming the Backbone grant is a reflection upon his motives as Secretary of the Interior. It is such a resolution as would sting an honest Federal officer to the quick. But Mr. Teller can not properly call the introduction of the resolution an impertinence. On the contrary, the issue of the patents is a very proper substitute for inquiry, and we hope the inquiry will be searching. The ex-Secretary will gain nothing by denouncing Mr. Van Wyck as a 'special champion of the laboring classes and of the downtrodden people of this country, and as the special opponent of the corporations.' Such language suggests too vividly for his good a comparison of his own official record toward the laboring classes and the corporations with that of the Senator from Nebraska. We are unable to reconcile Mr. Teller's professions of eagerness for the investigation to go on with his abuse of the author of the resolution. Does he really want the daylight in upon the issue of the patents, or is there something hidden which makes him fear the light?"

SPECIAL SESSION. We think every candid person will admit that sixty-one days biennially is too short a time to do the legislative work for a great State like Indiana. The Legislature of Ohio sits annually, and the sessions lasts from four to five months. There is not a State in the Union that has as short legislative sessions as Indiana unless it is some small Western State like Oregon. Special sessions have been called by nearly every Governor. Gevernor Baker called two, Hendricks, Williams and Porter each called special sessions. The situation now and two years ago is very different. This time not only the general and specific appropriation bills were not passed, but the Knightstown bill and the bill making provision for continuing the construction of the State house and other important measure were unacted. The Statehouse bill alone made a special session a necessity. To stop the work on the State-house would have complicated matters so far as the contract with the state for its construction is concerned, that it might have resulted in a less of hundreds of thousands of dollars to the people of the State. The Governor could not exercise any discretion about it-the situation compelled an extra session; besides, as the Governor says in his proclamation. "This thing of the State officers disbursing the public moneys and running the State and if to be continued, the Legislature migh just as well be dispensed with. We do not think the people of Indiana are yet willing to surrender their constitutional right, through their representatives, to control the government of the State, and say how and in what manner the public moneys shall be special session ought not to have been called do not understand the situation.

A HALT SUGGESTED. The Journal continues by rather coarse innuendo to reflect upon Rev. W. A. Bartlett, formerly pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, this city, now of the New York Avenue Church, Washington, the church in which President Cleveland intends to worship. The service in his church last Sunday was particularly interesting, the pastor preaching one of his most eloquent and brilliant sermons, and the attendance was unusually large, partly owing to the fact that the new President was expected to attend, but he did not. These facts are made the occasion to ridicule and unjustly criticise the church and the reverend gentleman, who, if not the ablest clergyman in the country, is intellectually grouped among them, and his hundreds of friends in this city are ashamed and mortified that any portion of

The Journal has always had a "pick" at Dr. Bartlett, and has seen proper to attack him in season and out of season. The Reverend Doctor is a Republican and is no particular friend of the Sentinel, yet "fair play" is desirable, even if it is not our political ox that is being gored. In this connection it is well to notice the fact that some small mind in control of the Journal's columns evidently feels great responsibility to reform and rearrange matters of vast importance in this mundane sphere. Its utterances on all topics have the authoritative and dogmatical tone of a judicial dictum. Neighbor, while attempting to regulate things, don't encompass the grave matters of the universe in too small a sphere, or you'll find yourself in the predicament of the fellow who "bit off more than he could chew." It might be a good stroke of policy on the part of the Journal to discontinue its attacks upon Dr. Bartlett. Its course is exciting unfavorable comment.

A STRONG COMBINATION. It is gratifying indeed to note with what unanimity the Republican press of the country, almost without exception, accord Messrs. Bayard, Garland and Lamar the qualities of high intellectual ability, scholarly attainments and purity of character which distinguish these illustrious men. With all the criticism which has been applied to these members of President Cleveland's Cabinet, who have been in public life so long and so conspicuously, not one word has been said or written of the integrity of their character and greatness of intellect except in praise, or at least in acknowledgment of their superiority. That our political opponents admit this is much; that such representative men are from the South is more, and we think no better opinion can be formed of Mr. Cleveland's far sightedness and good judgment than from that displayed by him in the selection of those men from the Southern States for his Cabinet.

Our President herein has done a master stroke and one that will strengthen him with the people over the whole Union: for while none are more highly esteemed nor more dearly beloved in the South, none are more respected in the North than are they. What a grand stride is this toward reconcilliation between two sections of our country which were engaged in deadly strife two decades

The bloody shirt has been waved effectually for the last time, Never again ensanguined garment do service in campaign to fire the Northern heart and engender sectional ill-feeling. With the disappearance of the bloody shirt also fades the glory of the Republican party, and with the inauguration of Cleveland dawns a new era upon our country.

While well known and tried men have been taken from the South for Cabinet positions, those from other sections of the Union were selected from the younger Democrats who have sprung up since the war; and although the reputation of some of them had scarcely become national, yet are they all of good repute and not without honor in their own country, they each and all baying made a name and fame which were not confined within the porders of their respective States. If this infusion of new life and young blood into the Administration be an experiment, certain it is that the Republicans look with favor and trembling upon Mr. Cleveland's selection of men for his chief counseleors, while the Democrats rejoice and are of exceeding good cheer.

A week has gone by since the announcement of our new President's Cabinet. The test of public criticism has been applied. each member weighed in the balance and none found wanting. The Democratic Administration starts out well under favorable auspices, and will make for itself a record that will thoroughily reinstate that grand old party in the hearts of the people and the control of our National affairs, for it will be on the sound Democratic principle so vital to our institutions-"a Government by the people, of the people, for the people."

DR. TALMAGE.

It is not surprising that Plymouth Church could not contain the numbers that flocked last night to its doors. The appearance of Dr. Talmage in any community in this country would border on a sensation. Who does not know him? He is the one preacher with the Christian world for his congregation. His sermons are printed and distributed by newspapers throughout the United States and Canada. Twenty papers in great Brittain, including seven in London, print them regularly, giving him there globe says he found Talmage's sermons wherever he went,

A preacher for millions beyond the hearing of his pulpit. Dr. Talmage has a church membership of over three thousand and a congregation averaging six thousand at the Brooklyn Tabernacle. He is not one of the prophets who is without honor in his own country. At his home reception room he is the recipient of deferential calls and tributes from thousands of his own and neighboring cities. The Monday morning papers flung in at his door report verbatim his sermons of the Sunday, which the telegraph have repeated to many papers at long distances. while scores and scores of weekly and Sunday papers print them in their nexs issues.

It is not difficult to trace the secret of the popularity of Dr. Talmage's sermons. They are so simple in language that a child can comprehend them. They are so orthodox that the most rigid Christian must approve them. They are so brainy that the most intellectual find them a feast. They are so picturesque in figures that the most romantic find them delectable in reading. They are so correct in taste that the most critical literatti read them with satisfaction. They are so redolent with Divine charity that the Divine spirit must accord them as his judgement, so winning his teachings, that those who know him personally give him their esteem and those who only read him, their confidence and admiration. His is an imposing responsibility. No other one man of this period of the Nineteenth Century wields so great a moral influence over his fellows. Yet in the prime of manhood he bids fair to continue long an influential moral factor-a boon which the Sentinel wishes the Christian world shall enjoy.

TURN THE RASCALS OUT.

"The Treasury Department will need a thorough overhauling," says Mr. Crawford. the observing Washington correspondent of the New York World. He gives also some other information of rather a startling char-

The Department of Justice has for nearly four years been run in the interests of the Attorney General and George Bliss. Theirs was an active working partnership. Frauds of the most notorious and flagrant character in the managements of the Marshals' offices of the country have been reported to this office without any prosecution following except in a few petty in stances. The public will remember that an agent of this department found that a marshal in Pittsburg had stolen in the way of fees during six yests' service over $200,000. This he had invested in landed property, and never been threatened with prosecution by the department until the facts of his great thefts were brought out by a Congressional Investigating Committee. Even then the prosecution against him was of a per-functory character, and has thus far resulted in

The same correspondent says that the Interior Department is worse than the Treas ury in its management Toose Republicans who are yet regretting that Mr. Cleveland defeated Mr. Blaine will read the following

The two most dishonest branches of this depart pent are the Indian Bureau and the Land Office have heard under officials in the Indian Office say that they propose, now that they can have proection, to make a clean breast of some of the enor nons frauds that have taken place in this Government confidence shop during the last ten years The Land Office has apparently been used as the headquarters of all the corporations in the country who desire to steal the public lands. The issuing of the patents for the Backbone Land Grant for which Teller was responsible, might have been prevented if there had been an honest man in the Land Office. But there has not been a single man in the entire Interior Department who has had the moral courage to resign his position and pro-test to the public against the frauds that have been perpetrated in this department, particularly under the reign of the late Secretary. The men who have kept silent should be treated as active participants in these wrongs.

THOSE who are selected for a limited time to manage public affairs are still of the people, and may do much by their example to encourage that plain way of living which, among their fellow-citzens, aids integrity and promotes thrift and pros-

The sentence above, from Mr. Cleveland's inaugural, excited favorable comment from a source that was hardly to be expectedviz., an English paper-the London Echo. In commenting upon it, the Echo exclaims: "Hear this, ye Kings with your tawdry crowns, ye Dukes and Earls with your tinsel coronets, ve Lords of the Bed chamber and Gold Sticks in Waiting, with your salaries drawn from the hard earned wages and slender resources of the thrifty poor-salaries paid to you for no service productive of good to the public, but only for playing the flunky and the fool! Is it not time, O patient English democracy, for us to open our eyes and take counsel of our wiser children? The money wasted over the pomp and pageantry of courts is spent in bolstering up the pratensions of rank and birth. Would it not be better spent in feeding the poor and teaching the ignorant?"

THE Sentinel has more than once suggested that with the largely increased wealth and population of Indiana, the present session time of the Legislature should probably be extended. The increase of National Legislation has been steady. Speaker Carlisle said at the close of the recent session of Congress that nearly as many bills had been introduced as in the first fifty years of our National existence. This increase in National legislation is kept pace with by that of every such growing State as Indiana. Is it not a reasonable proposition, then, that our Legislatures need longer sessions than they did thirty years ago

THE Republicans in the Legislature are held up by their organs as having opposed an extra session. Still they are on record as having voted solidly and persistently against taking up the Appropriation bill in the House. If they did not want an extra session, what did they want? That there should be no appropriations?

Emery A. Storrs after pronouncing Messrs. Bayard, Lamar and Garland as able men.

'They have accepted places in the Cabinet, and they are men of such character as not to imperi he success of the administration of which they orm so conspicuous a part by attempting to force pon the country any extreme Southern policy. have no fears of any extended raid upon the Treasury for the payment of rebel claims. I do not believe that either the Fresident or the Cabinet will favor anything of the sort,"

says of them:

Indeed! And yet it has been but a few moons since the same Storrs was making herce "bloody-shirt" speeches for Blaine and declaring the country would go to the 'demnition bow-wows' if ex-rebels should have any part in handling the reins of Government.

Emery A. Storrs to an Indianapolis Journal reporter: "I look for a complete revolution in our politics within the next two years, and in four years for a return of the old Republican party to power," Emery A. Storrs will be remembered as the man who gyrated himself onto the Republican Convention platform, at Chicago, instanter, after the nomination, to congratulate the country on the selection of Blaine and predicted his election by an overwhelming majority. Evidently Mr. Storr is not a trust-worthy prophet.

A Good Word for Judge Gooding. [Communicated.]

The colored people, and especially the colored Democrats, owe a debt of gratitude to Hon. D. L. Gooding for his able and successful efforts to pass the Civil Rights bill all colored people he is entitled to special rememberance, when it is remembered that by a rule of the House no bill could be called up only on a call of counties, and when Hancock was called he substituted a bill for one of his own and allowed his bill to lie on the table. as his own, and presented it out of the usual order by adopting this turn. He made an the bill, and put it on its passage, and it passed unanimously, showing clearly his able leadership in the House, and his power as a progressive, live Democrat, fitted for higher callings, which he richly deserves, and I hope in no far off future the Democrats will recognize his ability, energy, fidelity and courage, and call him to serve the people of the State in some higher calling, where he long since should have been. When the colored people of the State, remembering his disinterested, but faithful service in passing the civil rights bill, will say, Well done, thou good and faithful; thou has served us well in a smaller State. come up higher and do more. THE MILITARY CARNIVAL.

The Entertainment Last Night Wit nessed by Hundreds of People -"Standing Room Only,"

Every street car that left the center of the city on the Massachusetts and College avenue line, between the hours of 7 and 8 o'clock last night, was literally packed, and and Transportation Company under advisthe passengers were nearly all bound for the armery. Before 8 o'clock every seat in this brilliantly-lighted and handsomely-decorated building was occupied, and half an hour later there was "standing room only," and very littleat that. In fact the crowd was so dense as to hinder the military companies somewhat in executing the various movements.

Acout 8:30 o'clock the Indianapolis Light Infantry marched into the open space and the applause was long and continued. They were under the command of Captain Ross and presented a splendid appearance. After an exhibition drill by the Infantry lasting fifteen minutes the Emmet Guards appeared on the scene and executed several difficult movements. Next came a tableau, "Joan of Arc Battle Prayer," that heroine being represented by a very beautiful young lady with golden hair. The Indisnapolis Light Artillary then showed up and went through a sabr drill, finally retiring from the floor amid great applause. The remainder of the programme was taken up with two tableaux, "The Attack" and "After the Battle," and drills by the Richardson Zouaves and "Broom Brigade." The Zouaves took part in both of the tableaux, which were very pleasing, being loudly applauded by the audience. The following programme will be rendered to-night:

Talmage at Plymouth Church.

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, the celebrated pastor of the Brooklyn Tabernacle, lectured last evening under the auspices of the Indianapolis Lecture Course, at Plymouth Church, the auditorium and gaileries of the edifice being crowded. The subject of the lecture was "The World-Growing Better or Growing Worse?" The speaker discussed the many advantages for gaining knowlover those which existed century improvements in means of travel, mechanics, art and in fact, everything to which the American turns his hands. He argued that the people are every day becoming more and more intelligent and that they are growing better as they grow more intelligent, and this is true of the world at large. The lecture was a very comprehensive and instructive one and was not without many humorous references which added to its attractiveness and served to impress its teachings

The Department Horses,

The matter of selecting a veterinary surgeor to take charge of the horses of the Fire Department has not yet been decided, but has been referred to a committee of the Council. Dr. Greiner put in a bid for $140 and Dr. Elliott one for $180, and, to the surprise of everybody, the committee recommended that the latter be accepted. No question is made of Dr. Greiner's efficiency and why the Council Committee should desire to squander $40 of the people's money finds no explanation. The Council adopted the report favoring Elliott's bill, but the Board of Aldermen called a halt on the matter, and referred it back to the Council.

Death of C. F. Wolfe. Christian F. Wolfe died yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at his residence, of erysipelas. He has been a sufferer for some time past, but it was hoped he would recover from his affliction.
